

Three cone types -> three numbers per point

Different light, identical cone responses
(this is why a screen only needs three primaries)

