I ordered a large box of exported pomegranates for my mother's birthday expecting the same deep red arils and rich tart sweetness I remembered from childhood markets back home but after the long shipping delay they arrived bruised dry and honestly disappointing